The Grand Valley Journal of History is looking for articles to publish!

The aim of the Journal is to provide undergraduates, regardless of specialization or interest, with a cross disciplinary forum to explore different perspectives of studying the past.

Authors will receive constructive feedback to further develop their historiographical skills through the development of an academic community. We hope the Journal will help prepare undergraduates for the professional world while contributing to scholarly dialogue.

The Journal is published online at http://scholarworks.gvsu.edu/gvjh. There you can find articles we have published previously and the submission guidelines and formatting requirements for future submissions. You can find Grand Valley State University at http://gvsu.edu.

If you have questions about the Journal or about submitting, please email them to me, Joslyn Mara (my email is in the signature.)

Thank you!

Joslyn Mara

Assistant Editor-in-Chief
The Grand Valley Journal of History
Grand Valley State University
gvjhasst@mail.gvsu.edu