

Details of the research for the simplified printing history of the Polyanthea 1503-1681 presented in Ann Blair, Too Much To Know: Managing Scholarly Information Before the Modern Age (New Haven: Yale University Press, 2010), p. 180.

To correct in the table: p. 181, "1639 Cologne: Stoer" should be "1639 Geneva: Stoer"

Updated summer 2011 with information about copies in the Zentralbibliothek Solothurn, Switzerland, with warm thanks to Ian Holt.

A survey of copies of Mirabelli, Polyanthea... in on-line library catalogs carried out in 2005-6 by Morgan Sonderegger

Note: no attempt was made to verify the information in the on-line catalogs, therefore these results are likely to contain errors, but they offer a useful general view of the printing history and survival rates of these works. Notices of corrections to make are welcome.

The same location listed more than once indicates that multiple copies were found and that they had separate call numbers or some other notation confirming that they are distinct copies (as opposed to multiple volumes of the same title, or multiple listings of the same copy).

Catalogs searched (with abbreviations used): [non-European holdings listed at the end]

Links to many of these catalogs are consolidated at the Theatrum catalogorum tab of the website for Early Modern Studies at Harvard:

Table 1 notes

The following one-copy editions were not listed, as they seem suspect and no further information was available online:

1516 Basel, s.n. (in Avignon)

1613 Lyon, s.n. (in Nîmes)

Across all editions, the average number of copies is 15.3, with standard deviation 12.5.

Across all editions with more than one copy, the average number of copies is 17.2, with standard deviation 12.1.
