

Call for Papers

The editors of Report invite all undergraduate students and recent graduates to submit articles for the Spring 2023 issue. The theme for this year's issue is "Civil-Military Relations," but papers examining all topics and fields of history will be considered for publication. Submissions must be received no later than March 17, 2023 and authors will be notified of acceptances no later than April 1. Please send your papers to report.history@westpoint.edu.

Submission Guidelines

- Authors must be current undergraduates or recent graduates within the last 12 months. Authors do not need to have attended or graduated from West Point to submit papers for consideration.
- Submissions must have been written during the course of the author's undergraduate studies
- Papers based on original research or papers that examine historiographical subjects (rather than papers that synthesize secondary literature) are the strongest submissions
- Article submissions should not be under consideration with other publishers or have been previously published
- Submissions should be in Word (not PDF) format with Chicago-style footnotes
- The recommended word count is 3,000-6,000 words, but the editors welcome submissions of longer and shorter lengths

About the Journal

Report is an open-access undergraduate journal based in the Department of History at the United States Military Academy. The journal provides a platform to showcase the innovative historical scholarship produced by undergraduate authors. Published annually by the West Point Press and edited by a team of undergraduate students and a faculty advisor, the journal accepts and encourages submissions from undergraduate students at West Point, other service academies, and civilian universities. Submissions must be related to the field of history (broadly defined). Papers based on original research or those that examine historiographical subjects – rather than papers that synthesize secondary literature – are the strongest submissions.
