Hemispheres: The Tufts Journal of International Affairs

The Tufts Undergraduate Journal of International Affairs, one of the oldest undergraduate journals in the field, is now accepting submissions relating to this year's theme of The Global Commons. Submissions should be research articles, approx. 5000-8000 words, written by undergraduates in a broad range of fields relevant to international affairs. To view paper requirements and guidelines, please visit http://ase.tufts.edu/hemispheres/submission.html. To submit a paper, or if you have any questions or concerns, please contact hemispheres@tufts.edu.

Submission Deadline: January 21, 2017.

We welcome and encourage a broad interpretation of the theme. Potential research topics may include, but are not limited to:

Resource Wars, The Tragedy of the commons, Physical Resources, Oceans, Politics of the Arctic, Space, Information flows, International Trade, Property rights, Resource Depletion/Distribution, Rise of New Resources, the effect of international institutions and norms, Resource Access.

Sincerely,
Nandita Baloo and Arman Smigielski
Co Editors-in-Chief
Hemispheres