Hello!

I write to you on behalf of the Yale Historical Review, an undergraduate journal that publishes original research in History and related topics with historical focuses bi-annually. Our organization is currently looking for submissions for our Fall 2019 issue and was wondering if you might be able to forward this information to students in your department.

All papers must meet the following guidelines:

- Papers must have been written for an undergraduate class or undergraduate supervised independent study for credit (Recent graduates may submit work written prior to graduation). Graded papers must have received the equivalent of an A- or higher.
- Limit of one paper submission per student per semester.
- Submissions cannot have been previously submitted to the Review nor previously published anywhere.
- Submissions must be at least twelve double-spaced pages long and preferably no longer than thirty. Submissions longer than thirty double-spaced pages are accepted but may be excerpted if chosen for publication.

Each essay chosen for publication is edited by a team of professors and undergraduate editors.

Please send your submission to yalehistoricalreview@gmail.com with the subject line "Essay Submission" and the file title "YHR Fall 2019 Submission." Be sure to include the following information in your email:

- Your name, college, and year
- The class and professor for which the paper was written
- Date on which the paper was submitted to the class
- Your e-mail address

Because we read submissions anonymously, please remove your name and all identifying details from the file of the essay itself. We will accept submissions until November 1, 2019 at 11:59pm (ET). For other inquiries or more information, students can visit our website: https://historicalreview.yale.edu

Thanks so much,

Henry Jacob
