Jane Kamensky (History Dept., Schlesinger Library)

Workshop on Writing Fellowship Applications

Friday, December 9
10:00am – Noon

ROBINSON HALL
BASEMENT
CONFERENCE ROOM
HARVARD YARD

Many fellowship selection committees include scholars across a range of humanistic and social scientific disciplines. This workshop's central topic will be: how to articulate your project so as to be legible outside your subfield and discipline. This session will be especially relevant to those who can apply to the Warren Center, Harvard's research center for North American history – yet grad students from across the humanities and social sciences will find it useful.

See <http://warrencenter.fas.harvard.edu/event/kamensky> for this session's pre-work. (Email cwc@fas.harvard.edu if you need the article's password.) Doing the pre-work will allow you to gain more from the workshop, but please attend even if you cannot prepare in this way.
