

The Columbia Undergraduate Law Review, a journal of undergraduate legal scholarship based at Columbia University in the City of New York, is accepting submissions for its Fall 2023 issue.

The deadline for submissions is Tuesday, September 26, 2023, by 11:59 PM ET, but we encourage you to submit before that deadline. In recognition of the various paths undergraduates may take to study law, we welcome submissions of research articles, senior theses, and essays embracing a wide range of topics and viewpoints related to the field of law. Undergraduate students in any major, track, or class year should feel free to send us their work. Visit <https://www.culawreview.org> to view past journals or to read our mission statement.

Submissions must be double-spaced in Microsoft Word .doc or .docx format, follow Chicago style citations, and include endnotes and a Works Cited section. Although we do not have a strict length limitation, the majority of published pieces range from 15 to 20 pages (excluding references). Longer papers should be shortened to fit this page length recommendation before submission, and excessive length or brevity may affect acceptance.

In the document, please also include the following information:

1. Your name
2. Current email address and phone number
3. College/University and year of graduation
4. Title
5. 250-word abstract
6. Short explanation of when and why paper was initially written

Please submit your article on our website under the "Submit" tab. Feel free to reach out to Jinoo Kim (jak2321@columbia.edu) or Shaurir Ramanujan (sar2262@columbia.edu) with any questions or concerns.